UQ BUSINESS SCHOOL

MESSAGE FROM THE ACADEMIC DEAN
AND HEAD OF UQ BUSINESS SCHOOL
PROFESSOR IAIN WATSON

UQ Business School has an outstanding track record of delivering research that is relevant, high quality teaching and engaging with business. We are committed to working with all our partners to further build UQ Business School with a global network ensuring we create the next generation of leaders and are contributing to sustainable growth in our community.

Bus Stop 1950s

The University of Queensland (UQ) is one of Australia's premier learning and research institutions. It is the oldest university in Queensland and has produced almost 197,000 graduates since opening in 1911. UQ has a long and proud history in the teaching of business, commerce and management. UQ has produced, and continues to produce, some of Australia's most successful business leaders.

Economics was the first business related discipline taught at UQ and degree level Commerce programs were originally offered in 1926 with the MBA program in 1972. The Faculty of Commerce was established in 1925, with the Department of Accounting (which became Commerce) formed in 1961. The Department of Business Administration (which became Management) was created in 1972 and in 2002 the Departments of Commerce and Management merged to form UQ Business School.

In the nine years since it was established UQ Business School has grown to become one of the leading business schools in Australia and the Asia-Pacific region. At UQ Business School we believe that teaching, research and consulting are all crucial in creating a learning environment that results in the maximum benefit for our students. The School has a strong international reputation built on a foundation of quality programs and staff who are also in demand as consultants to businesses around the world.

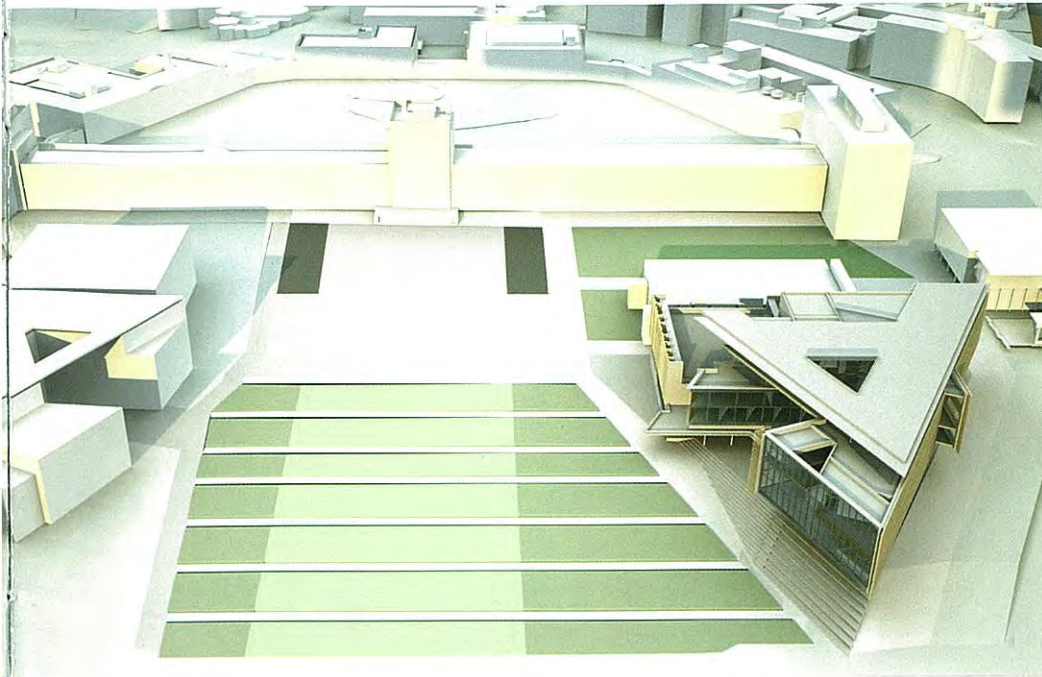

Our degree offerings include undergraduate, postgraduate coursework, and postgraduate research programs in business, commerce and management. UQ Business School Downtown, in the heart of Brisbane's CBD, is a focus for the School's engagement with business and industry and is the location of UQ Business School's vibrant Corporate Education program.

As UQ Business School continues to build on its national and international reputation and standing, we have committed to the construction of an iconic and majestic building. Located in close proximity to the Forgan Smith Building, it will serve the needs of students, programs and key stakeholders.

The UQ Business Precinct will have state of the art lecture theatres, student learning resources, as well as high tech executive meeting facilities and a Business Interchange Hub to further serve the engagement between UQ Business School and the business community.
